Course Title: Language Arts 9

Course Number: 1001

Prerequisites: None

Grade Level(s): 9

Length of Course: 2 Semesters

Credits/PRI Area: .5 credits per semester

COURSE DESCRIPTION: English 9 is a seminar-based course that incorporates all Humanities: philosophy, religion, history, literature, language and fine arts in a study of the great world thinkers, writers, playwrights, and artists. Daily/weekly readings, conversations, and formal and informal writing assignments guide the class during the understanding/examination of seminar topics. Basic language conventions such as grammar, editing skills, and vocabulary are given attention as a basis for active concise communication – oral and written. Descriptive, research, and narrative essays, plus short stories in which characterization is the major component, comprise the writing focus of English 9.

Course Title: Language Arts 10

Course Number: 1002

Prerequisites: Language Arts 9

Grade Level(s): 10

Length of Course: 2 Semesters

Credits/PRI Area: .5 credits/semester

COURSE DESCRIPTION: In English 10 the literary focus is world literature in many genres: novel, short story, memoirs, essays, informational texts, and poetry. Students learn to analyze the writing styles, techniques, vocabulary, and literary devices used to form strong literature. Students learn to organize and write original expository essays using the National Writing Project process. The class addresses grammar & language mechanics in writing workshops based on the needs of the entire class and on an individual basis during writing conferences and uses projects and seminars where appropriate to encourage creativity, organization, critical thinking, and development of oral presentations.

Course Title: Language Arts 11

Course Number: 1003

Prerequisites: Language Arts 10

Grade Level(s): 11

Length of Course: 2 Semesters

Credits/PRI Area: .5 credits per semester

COURSE DESCRIPTION: English 11 is a seminar-based course that incorporates all Humanities: philosophy, religion, history, literature, language and fine arts in a study of primarily American thinkers, writers and artists, although we will dabble in the thoughts of all Great Books. Daily readings, conversations and informal writing assignments guide us toward topics that result in a least eight formal writing assignments per semester. We learn basic language conventions (grammar, editing skills and vocabulary) to encourage active, concise communication – oral and written. Comparison/contrast, and persuasive essays and short stories are the writing focus of English 11.
